

ENC 4930 Sports, Rhetoric, and Society
Fall 2021 Online
Zero Textbook Fees
Dr. Darrel Elmore

Fulfills Professional
and Public Writing
Requirements

This course will offer students a unique opportunity to explore issues related to sports while developing skills in writing and rhetoric. Sports historically has been tied to issues of race, gender, class, diversity, community, and language. NFL players in recent years have supported Black Lives Matter. Billie Jean King, Serena Williams, and Sue Bird have advocated for women. Sporting events that benefit charity and community are an integral part of South Florida's culture. Students will read an e-book on the history of race or gender in sports plus current articles. Students will participate in a sports-related community engagement project.
